PROFESSIONAL PROFILE

A foreign language teaching specialist and trained educator, I have thirteen years of experience in FLE teaching, educational coordination, intercultural management and cultural diplomacy. My experience has allowed me to develop innovative and inclusive pedagogical strategies, aimed at making language learning a tangible and transformative experience, based on the action-oriented approach and the development of communicative skills.

I have been a foreign language professor at the Pedagogical University of Caracas, a migration advisor for Quebec, a collaborator with several services of the French Embassy in Venezuela and Ecuador, and Pedagogical Director of the Alliance Française de Cuenca, where I also served as an official translator.

My mission in Cuenca allowed me to deepen my skills in team management, pedagogical planning, trainer training and inter-institutional relations, which materialized in a 34.7% growth in student enrollment over the last three years.

Today, as director of the Alliance Française de San Cristóbal de Las Casas, I am leading an institutional recovery strategy founded on ethics, innovation, administrative rigor and cultural revitalization. My goal is to continue offering high-quality, human and relevant teaching, while strengthening the vitality of the Alliances Françaises network.
